

Greetings from the Bentley Institute Press:

The Bentley Institute Press (BI Press) is a full-service publishing house focused exclusively on the global infrastructure industries. The BI Press publishes high-quality technical books, ranging from critical thought leadership books for the infrastructure industries to in-depth undergraduate and graduate level textbooks. The BI Press also publishes comprehensive training and reference books for critical infrastructure software. Our goal is to become the premier publishing outlet for infrastructure thought leaders to share their wisdom, insight, and experiences with the practitioners, educators, and students working to improve and sustain the world's infrastructure. We are currently looking for authors to produce texts that will join our growing library of titles.

Publishing with the BI Press is an experience unlike any other in the field. Our exclusive focus on the infrastructure industries makes it possible for our authors to realize benefits beyond those offered by more general-purpose publishers, including:

- Competitive compensation
- Comprehensive technical review and support from Bentley Systems and our network of infrastructure professionals and industry leaders
- A built-in global audience among Bentley Systems' users, their organizations, and their extended infrastructure enterprises
- Direct access to 100+ professional software titles to support research and examples for your book, including the opportunity to provide direct practical experience by including professional level software in your book
- Reduced pricing of your finished book for students and professors for increased exposure to the academic community
- Confidence in the publishing source

If you're ready to make a difference in the global infrastructure industries, please join us in our collective mission to improve and sustain the world's infrastructure.
