

ENGINEERING FIRM OWNERS

5 WAYS to Deliver Site Development Projects Sooner

As an Engineering Firm Owner, you need to ensure your team has the tools required to get the job done quickly, without hiring new or expensive staff. Winning against the competition is dependent on the software you use, and how fast it can deliver what you need it to. Discover OpenSite.

Kickstart your site design projects with OpenSite®

Complete risk assessments in 48
hours

Increase productivity by at least 25%

1

Promote a collaborative working environment

Integrate existing real-world conditions and easily collaborate with project partners. Work with different data types, disciplines, and distributed teams to streamline the project development lifecycle and improve feedback loops.

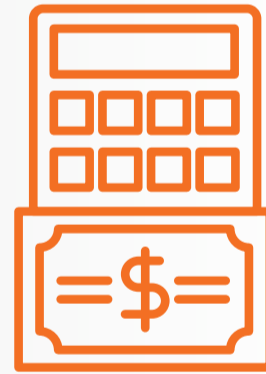

Get more done with the same staff

Use simple parametric capabilities to easily create site layouts at scale, including buildings, parking lots, driveways, sidewalks, and more. Make edits on the fly and watch as the design automatically reconfigures and adapts to changes, no specialists required.

2

Find the optimal design for your budget

Use one-click grading optimization to compare multiple design scenarios and find the best cost of construction based on your requirements. Understand how much cut, fill, import, and export is needed with project cost estimations included.

3

Quickly identify and eliminate risks

Identify risks early in the conceptual phase, overcome them, and finalize your design sooner. Increased transparency helps ensure there aren't any nasty surprises and reduces the likelihood of expensive re-work costs and delays to the project.

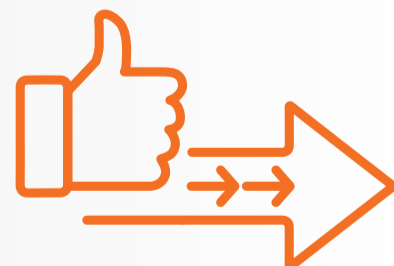

4

5

Stay one step ahead of competitors

Create detailed models and high-impact visuals and animations of your project at any time in the workflow to better communicate design intent. Show your client, stakeholders, and the community exactly what your design will look like to secure stakeholder buy-in, set yourself apart from the competition, and win the bid.

Get started today ▶

OpenSite, the only true site design solution.

Bentley®